Making a Difference:

April Colon- Haywood

In the recent "Sing Children, Sing, production area residents got a chance to see the talents of the play's producer/music director April Colon-Hayward. Colon, of Benicia, is no stranger to producing musical blockbusters. In 1990, Colon produced the American Music Extravaganza, a tribute to the nation's greatest African-American music legends. Colon, who works at Berkeley High School, is the mother of two children. She is also a proud mother-in-law and grandmother. The North Bay Progress Publisher, Sharon R. McGriff recently spoke to Colon about her musical accomplishments.

Q: How did you come up with the idea for the American Music Extravaganza?

A: We didn't want people to forget the many contributions of African-Americans musicians and entertainers to our nation, and the world. From Hip-Hop and Rap, to Gospel, to Jazz, we have contributed greatly to the culture of the world.

Q: How would you characterize AME?

A: We are a musical and dramatic troupe, that pays tributes to such entertainers as Nat King Cole, Sarah Vaughn, Paul Robeson, Marian Anderson, Aretha Franklin, and her father the late Rev. C.L. Franklin. Many of these people are no longer with us. But we also pay tribute to such new singers as the Winans, and Patti LaBelle.

Q: When did you produce the first musical?

A: In 1985.

Q: In addition to music, what other art forms are presented?

A: We do impressions, skits and comic relief as forms of paying tribute to various artists.

For example, we performed Pearl Bailey and Little Richard. We do spoofs, both dramatic and comical, of certain people who are colorful artists. In our productions, we usually provide a forum for young adults to create and perform their own materials.

Q: What are the possibilities of seeing more AME performances the Vallejo area?

April Colon-Haywood

A: We want to continue to share our music and historical contributions. We also want to see that our youth become more knowledgeable of their wonderful and rich culture. I definitely want to see more cultural events brought to the North Bay.

Breaking The Cycle of Domestic Violence

Beverly Owen, Director of the Domestic Violence Program of the Solano County Economic Opportunity Council will present an informal program on domestic violence from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. on Tuesday, March 10 in room 1106 at Solano Community College. The presentation will include a showing of the film "We Will Not Be Beaten."

According to Owen, women involved in an abusive situation are often not aware that they are caught in a cycle of violence. She will discuss why women stay in violent situations and the services available from the Domestic Violence Program. The program sponsors a 24-hour telephone hotline, a support group for women involved in abusive situations and two shelters for women and their children.

The seminar is co-sponsored by EOPS (Extended Opportunity Program and Service), CARE (Cooperative Agency Resources for Education) and the Re-Entry Program at Solano Community College.

For more information about the seminar or any of the services provided by the Re-Entry program, call counselor Carol Lilleberg at 864-7101, Tuesday through Thursday.

Commentary:

Personally Speaking: Take Me To Your Leader

In the old sci-fi movies of the fifties, invaders from outer space would land on earth and the first thing they would say was "take me to your leader." If these same invaders arrived in inner-city America today and asked that very same question, Black Americans would be at a loss for words. This is not to discount the Rev. Jesse Jackson or Minister Farrakhan, but the influence of these two men is limited for varying reasons.

Jesse Jackson seeks a political position and although admirable, Black politicians, with a few exceptions, have not been the social leaders the Black community as a whole has looked to for guidance. For that reason, Rev. Jackson's political aspirations have somewhat undermined his role as a national Black leader.

As to Minister Farrakhan, his increasing popularity has yet to reach the point to where he is accepted by the majority of the Black community as its national spokesperson. Many Blacks still have difficulty with the tenets of the Muslim faith and strong views espoused by Minister Farrakhan, although increasing racial hostilities and economic hardship are making for a rapid increase in converts.

Beyond these two men, Black America is at a serious loss for leaders. Organizations such as the NAACP and SCLC are rapidly losing legitimacy as some of their leaders take positions that appear inspired by personal gain as opposed to the good of the Black community. An example of such perverse leadership was the support that several NAACP chapters gave to Clarence Thomas. It was ironic and sad to see branches of the most prominent organization devoted to the causes of African-Americans and affirmative action support a man who dearly hates affirmative action. Of course, the support of local chapters such as that in Compton was isolated, but demonstrative of the unfocused leadership that now exists in the Black community.

Truthfully, we have been without a leader since the death of Dr. King. We are in such a quandary that many opportunistic Blacks have found prosperity by selling their souls to conservatism. The recent conversion of many successful Blacks appears attributable to at least two factors; dissatisfaction with the democratic party and selfishness.

Everyone is attracted to a winner and Republicans have controlled the White House for 19 of the past 23 years. Opportunity abounds in the Republican party. A young educated Black person willing to adopt the conservative line can advance in politics and business at an obscene rate compared to the typically liberal, if not radical Black person. Despite the fact that our brothers and sisters are enduring increasingly difficult times, and increased racism, more and more successful Blacks are adopting the conservative, Republican line to advance their own interests.

This trend makes it increasingly clear that we cannot accept the white mainstream view that leaders must be either politicians or businesspersons.

African American leaders, real leaders, have always come from the community. Whether it be the church or the jailhouse, we have defined our own leaders. From Marcus Garvey, Dr. King, Malcolm X, Huey Newton to Angela Davis, the leaders of the Black community have always been based in the community. Thus, we must look to our communities for our next generation of leaders.

IT'S YOUR WORLD

By Morris Turner, III

Toxic Chemicals In Our Homes?

According to the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the United States produces over 260 million tons of toxic waste per year. Many of these toxic substances are found in and around our homes, and over a period of time can have a dramatic effect on our health as well as the health of our children.

Where Can These Toxic Substances Be Found?

When you drive down the highway it's easy to see and smell the hideous chemical clouds produced by the petroleum plants in the Solano County area. However, in the home some of the poisons are less obvious and are more subtle in their effect on us. From the time we walk through our front doors, we have begun exposing ourselves to these dangerous chemicals.

Carpet

That fresh smell of new carpet is actually the odor of polyethylenes resins used in its production. These resins can contribute to various forms of cancer, in particular lung cancer.

PAINT

Until recently most paints could be found to contain large amounts of lead. This lead often caused headaches, but was known to also bring about liver and kidney damage as well as lung cancer. You have probably noticed that leaded gasoline has been taken off the market for many of the same reasons.

LINOLEUM

The glue used to hold down linoleum contains the same resins found in carpet and the particle board underlayment or plywood contains formaldehyde. This has been found to produce skin disease and birth defects. If that's not bad enough, formaldehyde is also used as a preservative in making white sugar.

Kitchen and Bathrooms

These are probably the most toxic areas of our homes. Our bathrooms contain linoleum, paint, and many spray cleaners known to contain toxins. Even our tooth pastes contain saccharin, a chemical sweetener known for its cancer causing potential. In kitchen we often store ant/roach spray, oven cleaner, bleach and various general cleaning supplies.

What Can Be Done To Make Our Homes Safer?

As you can see the environments of our homes cannot be completely changed over night. Don't go out and tear up the carpets, scrape the paint off the walls or concrete over your new linoleum floor. But there are some definite ways to improve the healthiness of our homes and the interesting thing about it is that it's "the old way".

I can remember growing up using baking soda instead of toothpaste to clean my teeth. My mother told me "It's the best thing for you". Did you ever use baking soda? Read the side of the baking soda box sometime. You might find it interesting.

Oven Cleaning—Use baking soda for scouring. For baked on grease, put a quarter cup of ammonia in the overnight to loosen it up. Scrub the next day with baking soda.

Cleaning Drains—Pour a quarter cup of salt down drain, followed by boiling water, then flush with tap water.

Cleaning Mirrors—Use a mixture of vinegar and water.

Carpet Cleaning—Sprinkle cornstarch on carpet and vacuum up.

These are just a few ways to reduce the toxic chemicals around the house, there are many more. If you'd like to know more ask your mother or grandmother, I'm sure they'll have some suggestions for you.

Booker T. Washington Revisited Conference

The Solano County Office of Education and the SUCCESS Consortium are co-sponsoring the third annual Solano County Booker T. Washington Revisited Conference. The conference is scheduled for Saturday, March 28, from 8 a.m.-3 p.m. at Solano Community College, 4000 Suisun Valley Rd., Suisun, California.

The conference has several objectives:

- to acquaint African-American students with nontraditional career choices that are available to them;
- to reintroduce the work ethic values that Booker T. Washington stressed;
- to reinforce academic learning related to history and English; and
- to provide additional resources for participating districts to raise the academic achievement of African-American students.

Though any student may attend, priority is being given to African-American students in grades 10 and 11 with grade point averages from C plus to C minus.

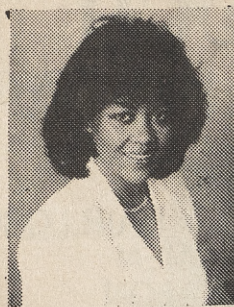

For more information about the conference, call (707) 864-7000, Ext. 259.

Dr. Frances Cress Welsing Appears Before SRO Audience At Berkeley

Wheeler Auditorium, U.C. Berkeley campus, was packed solid recently for the appearance of Dr. Frances Cress Welsing, noted author. The former Howard University professor's thought provoking theory on racism, and its cause, has long been the subject of debate.

Welsing said racism that impacts people of color negatively is based on a global system that is "all over the planet."

"It's in our laws, sex, the workplace, politics.

Welsing, who has spent much of her adult years studying the impact of racism on people of color, said that following her graduation from college in 1957 she journeyed to Germany where she could find out about racism and the part it played in the Jewish holocaust.

"I wanted to find out why this happened," she said, referring to the massive slaughtering of millions of Jews in the 1940s.

While Welsing spoke mainly on her theory of genetic inferiority—which she believes is the main reason for racism—she also told the largely young audience that there were ways to combat the bigotry.

Black people, she said, can stem much of the impact of racism by resisting negative behavior. Some methods to combat racism, she said, include:

*Stop gossiping about each other.

*Stop name-calling.

*Stop squabbling—stop fighting with each other.

*Stop being discourteous to one another.

*Stop telling on each other.

*Stop pretending that racism does not exist.

"We need to look at racism like a chess game....you don't hate your opponent, you anticipate what your opponent is going to do," she said.

ELDER LAW

Incapacitated? Who Will Handle Your Finances?

By Attorney F. Douglas Lofton

A heart attack or stroke can often result in mental or physical incapacity. Incapacity can also result from such age-related diseases as Alzheimer's, Parkinson's, and Arthritis. As a person grows older, unfortunately, the likelihood of becoming physically incapacitated, mentally incapacitated, or both increases dramatically.

If you should become incapacitated, who would manage your financial affairs? Who would pay the medical bills, car payments, insurance premiums, and other financial obligations that you have? If you know of a friend or family member who would manage these affairs for you, that person would need, for example, access to your bank accounts to pay these bills. However, before your bank will allow your friend or relative to have access to your accounts, he or she must first have documented legal authorization to handle your financial affairs.

So how can your friend or relative get this legal authority? A Court of law can issue an order authorizing a person to be your conservator. Depending on the decision of a judge, your conservator could have legal authority to handle all your financial affairs.

Unfortunately, the process of having someone appointed as your conservator is often complex, time consuming, and can result in exorbitant attorneys fees. Typically, the expense of having a conservator appointed is paid out of your financial assets—not the conservator's.

Fortunately, there is much less time consuming and expensive alternative to a conservatorship. You can provide your friend or relative legal authorization to handle your financial affairs through a Durable Power of Attorney for Financial Management. A Durable Power of Attorney for Financial Management is a legal document whereby you designate a person, known as your "agent" or "attorney-in-fact," to handle your financial affairs.

Under a "DPA," banks, insurance companies, and other institutions and agencies, are legally required to follow your agent's instructions as if they were dealing with you personally.

An Elder Law Attorney can draft a DPA in a relatively short period of time. Furthermore, an attorney can draft a DPA for less than a third of the cost that he or she would charge you if you needed a conservatorship.

So how do you execute a legally valid DPA? In order to execute a legally valid DPA, you must be mentally competent at the time you sign the document. This means that you are mentally capable of understanding you are giving the agent the power to conduct financial affairs on your behalf.

Unfortunately, family members or friends typically wait until their loved one is already mentally incompetent before they attempt to have a DPA executed. At that point, their loved one is no longer capable of legally executing a Durable Power of Attorney. As a consequence, the friend or relative would have no other alternative other than to get a court ordered conservatorship in order to handle the financial affairs. Therefore, the time to execute your DPA is now—while you are mentally alert.

Let's assume that you have decided that a DPA is a good idea, and that you are going to execute one. You will now have to decide who will be your "agent." A common misconception is that your agent has to be an attorney. Your agent does not have to be an attorney. Any adult can be your agent. Typically, the agent is a close friend or member of your family. What is crucial is that you appoint an agent who is both trustworthy and responsible.

Your agent must be trustworthy and responsible for the following reasons.

First, your agent is likely to have access to all, or a large portion of your assets. This means that a dishonest could have the opportunity to steal your financial assets before you or law enforcement officials could become aware of his or her actions.

Second, the agent will generally be responsible for insuring money owed to you is deposited in your accounts, and that your various bills are paid. However, an irresponsible agent can neglect to perform these duties. For example, he or she could neglect to pay certain bills which could result in delinquency fees, or even a law suit against you.

If you happen to choose an untrustworthy or irresponsible agent the law does provide you with safeguards. Under the DPA, you can limit the amount of authority you give the agent. For example, the DPA can be drafted so that your agent will only be authorized to pay medical bills out of your account.

Also, as a safeguard against possible abuses of power by your agent, the law gives you the right to revoke the DPA at any time, as long as you are mentally competent. Revoking the DPA will terminate the agent's authority to act on your behalf.

Finally, as long as you are mentally competent, you can always manage your financial affairs even if you have already executed a DPA.

On the other hand, if you know a responsible person whom you can trust to handle your financial affairs, consider appointing that person as your agent under a Durable Power of Attorney. Executing a DPA can save you and your friend or relative a great deal of time and expense of having to seek a court order to handle your affairs—should you become unable to handle these affairs yourself.

Furthermore, if you have executed a DPA, you can take comfort in knowing that your bills can be paid, money owed to you will be collected, and your financial affairs in general can be handled as if you were handling them yourself. An Elder Law Attorney can draft the DPA to fit your special needs and considerations.

If you would like more information on the Durable Power of Attorney for Financial Management, you can contact the law offices of Lofton & Lofton in Benicia at 745-1362.

Please look for my column in the next issue of the North Bay Progress where I will describe how the Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care and the so-called "Living will" can enable you and your family to make health care decisions in advance of incapacity.

'Sing Children, Sing' Showcases Vast Array of Vallejo Talent

Reviewed by Sharon R. McGriff

The recent "Sing Children, Sing", production that hit Vallejo by storm, has left a number of people asking one question?

Why did it take so long for such a theatrical production to be mounted here?

The reason for the question is simple: Vallejo is full of some really talented people. "Sing Children, Sing", provided an excellent vehicle for that talent.

The play, written by Vallejo resident Douglas Mackbee, and mounted by TPAC Productions, focused on the tumult and turmoil of a neighborhood in Urban America. Dealing with issue of drugs, crime, disrespect, and families in crisis, the play also focused on possibilities—and hope.

...Dealing with issues of drugs, crime, disrespect, and families in crisis, the play also focused on possibilities - and hope.

While I had some problems with the length of the play—there were some scenes that could have been tighter—the message of the play was not lost. Playwright Mackbee manages to deal with a myriad of negative influences that are part of the inner-city landscape nationwide, and at the same time, offer solutions—especially the need for better communication between old and young, the haves and the have-nots, and church-goers versus non-church goers.

Area church choirs, King Solomon Baptist Church, Friendship Baptist Church, Second Baptist Church, and the Kyles Temple Inspirational Choir, provided excellent backdrop to the church scenes.

While the entire troupe gave believable portrayals, strong performances were turned in by David Simon, who played "Terry T", a street-wise youngster destined, it seems, to live out his life in some sort of criminal activity.

Larry Grant turned in an exceptional performance as "The Colonel," a philosophical street drunk who offered excellent life-lessons in between his bouts with the bottle.

Mattil Randle made the most of her acting debut, playing "Momma Cat-tie", an earthy church mother who shows that the power of faith and strong belief, can overcome the worst chaos and despair.

April Colon-Hayward showed her ability to wear two hats in her roles as play producer and head of the choir. Colon, whose formal, and professional training was apparent, has a rich voice that practically soared above the Hogan High School Auditorium. Barbara Kane also lent her great voice to the production. Other stellar performances were turned in by Phil Lewis, whose "Pastor Turner" character was awesome.

"Sing Children, Sing" proved that theater—relevant theater—can be a reality in the Vallejo area. It's just a matter of when can we get more?

Albertina Walker to Sing in Gospel Music Extravaganza

World-reknowned gospel singer Albertina Walker will appear in concert at a Gospel Music Extravaganza, Sunday, April 5, at Hogan High Auditorium, 850 Rosewood Ave., Vallejo. The event starts at 4 p.m.

In addition to Miss Walker, Emmett Powell and the Gospel Elites, and Verlin Sanders will also bring their musical talents to the extravaganza.

The event is being sponsored by The Friends of the People Outreach Ministry. The ministry is made up of concerned people from throughout Northern California who formed to help others.

According to Allan Hayson, a member of the organization, the outreach's main concern is to win souls to Christ, and to raise money for young people to go to college.

"We are also interested in helping to feed the hungry and at Thanksgiving and Christmas, we want to make sure families' needs are being met," Hayson said.

The Friends of the People grew out of the KWANZAA concept—African-Americans fostering better relations between their families and communities. "We were concerned about where we were heading...we wanted to pull the family back together again in the old-fashioned way," Hayson said.

Donations for the event are $14, or $16, at the door. Tickets can be purchased at the House of Soul Restaurant, 1526 Solano Ave., Vallejo.

SERMON OF THE MONTH

Jesus - Divine and Human

By Rev. Kemp Burley Jr. Pastor Union Baptist Church.

He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all.

St. John 3:31.

The world has produced some great men, there can be no doubt. All we have to do is read the pages of history to prove this to be true. Different periods have produced men much like the men of other periods. But there is one whom history cannot reproduce.

There are many who contend that Jesus was an ordinary man. If he was just an ordinary man, I would like to challenge the world to produce another Jesus. Produce another Jesus like the Jesus who was conceived by the Holy Ghost and born of a virgin. He was a man of two natures: Divine and Human. He received His human nature from His mother and His divine nature from His father. Jesus decided to be born, and he decided when to be born. He made the choice of His mother. He could have, chosen a queen or a princess for His mother, and He would have been born in a palace or a mansion. But He chose a virgin by the name of Mary, she ingratiated herself into the affection of the Holy Spirit.

For a birth place, He could have chosen Athens, the city of culture and beauty; Babylon, one of the great cities of antiquity; Jerusalem, the capital of Judah and also of christianity; Memphis, the capital of ancient Egypt and the cradle of civilization. But no, He wanted to be born in Bethlehem of Judah.

Produce another Jesus, who has an earthly mother and a heavenly Father. Produce another Jesus that is as old as His Father and older than His mother. Not only is He older than His mother, but He made His mother. John said,

I challenge the world to produce another Jesus who can divide the centuries and change the river of history out of His course, and cause them to have a chronological regeneration. For when Jesus was born B.C. became A.D. Time stopped, and started counting up.

You can match every good man that the world has ever known with one equally as good or as great. Homer of the Greeks was great, reaching with the wings of his poetic fancy. But you can match him with Virgil, who wielded a pen that ploughed its way as far as Homer's wings of fancy could fly. Demosthenes, the silvertongued orator finds his equal in Cicero Dante, whose ears heard Hell's infernal drums bass in Hell's uproar, beating time to the ceaseless groans of the lost, run not one step ahead of Milton the blind Baptist poet, whose ears were attuned to the hallelujah choruses of heaven.

Alexander conquered the world, but so did Caesar, Napoleon was a great general, but he was defeated at Waterloo by Wellington. Martin Luther was a great reformer, but along side him stands Martin Luther King Jr. There is no one so great in the history of the world that he may not be equalled by someone else. But when you mention Jesus, there is no one who can stand along side Him. He stands alone, unique and supreme. Because there is none like Him.

History has given us men like Charlemagne, the Caesar of Rome, the Pharaohs of Egypt, the Philips of Macedonia, Alexander the Great, Napoleon Bonaparte, just to name a few, but they all have left these mundane shores to never return. But Jesus lives today, and after more than 1900 years He says, "Behold, I am alive forevermore."

America is a great country and it has given to the world scholars, poets, statesmen, philosophers, doctors, clergymen, lawyers, Military men, scientists, inventors, engineers, teachers, singers who are as great as any in the world. But I challenge you to produce another Jesus who never wrote a book, but the libraries are filled with books written about Him. He never wrote a song, but His name has furnished the titles for many songs.

There is none like him in compassion.

He fed 5,000

There is none like him in sympathy

He called Lazarus back from the grave

There is none like him in LOVE

He died for our sins on Calvary

There is none like him for after three days in the grave He took the sting from death and the victory from the grave.

There is none like him for He rose for your justification and mine.

CHURCH NEWS

"The Controlled Women of God Living In A Sinful World" is the theme for the Good Samaritan Baptist Church Young Women and Matrons Auxiliary's annual Prayer Breakfast, Saturday, March 7, at 9 a.m., downstairs in the church's dining area at 407 Capitol St., Vallejo.

Speaking on the theme will be officers from the St. John District Association Women Department. All women are invited to join in this great spiritual experience. For more information, call 648-1597 or 553-1896. Rev. M.D. Slade is pastor of the Good Samaritan Baptist Church.
